

HOW TO FIND MODELS

We are asked a lot why we don't source models for you. We did actually attempt to do this in years past however it took many hours of administrative time each week, which has to be factored into the cost of your course. We also know that friends and family are far more likely to turn up than strangers. For these reasons it works out much better if you source your own models – but we are here to help.

Remember you only need one model between 2 students. Pair up with a peer and make plans to share the model-finding responsibilities.

Try these ideas -

- Ask your friends and family first – they are more reliable and more likely to be honest with you!
- Go on Facebook and advertise on your local community pages. Search terms such as –
 - 'Grapevine'
 - 'Buy Swap Sell'
 - 'Trade' or 'Trading'
 - 'Pay it Forward'
 - Your suburb or city name
 - 'Mum' (for parenting groups, all Mums need pampering!)

If we were to try and find models for you, this is all we would be doing – posting in these groups. Some of our favourites are –

- Create a Facebook page and post your work regularly, calling for models each time
- Create a public Facebook event detailing what you need and when. Invite your entire Facebook friends list and encourage your friends to invite their friends by offering a free cuticle oil to anyone who refers a friend.
- Advertise on <https://www.neighbourly.co.nz/>

- Approach local kindys, schools, women's gyms and other female-centric businesses and ask to advertise in their mailers or to give a half price appointment once you're qualified to any one of their staff members who helps out as a model
- Approach the Women's Refuge or Ronald McDonald House – they definitely deserve pampering!
- Approach Look Good Feel Better and Dress for Success
- Put flyers on Uni Noticeboards and Community Centre Noticeboards
- Ask EVERYONE. The check out girl at Pak n Save might be dying to have her nails done!
- We have a mailing list of around 800 people that are willing to model. We contact them every Tuesday with a list of available spaces. To be included on this mailout, go to the pinned post/announcement in the Novice/Grads Facebook Group. You'll find it at <https://www.facebook.com/groups/MonacoNovice/permalink/1889638864645862/>.
